NACLO 2020 INVITATIONAL ROUND AT THE UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON ON MARCH 5

Submitted by Joyce Parvi on October 19, 2015 - 3:24pm

NACLO is an international contest in which middle school and high school students solve linguistics puzzles. No prior knowledge of linguistics or languages is necessary to solve the problems - just logic skills.

The Invitational Round competition is on Thursday, March 5, 2020, 9:00 am — 1:00 pm. Seattle and Puget Sound area qualifying students will compete at the University of Washington Seattle Campus in the Linguistics Department conference room, Guggenheim Hall, Room 415L.

To view the UW's NACLO webpage, please go here.

People Involved: James Hoard, Luke Zettlemoyer, Joyce Parvi

News Category: Announcements, Community Impact